

why should the banks be given special privlages to solicit people. They are no different then any other business! I don't want to be bothered by them or other solicitors. The last thing people want is be bothered by solicitors after working all day. Now days familys don't spend enought time together and it should not be used up by listening to a solicitor, Besides there are so many scams out there, how do the elderly know what's true. If you give banks that right, anyone can call and say they are a bank and do they have a deal for you, they just need some information.
